

To help you complete this worksheet, use the On the Move book.

Train

All day long, trains hurry from town to town. They stop at _____ along the way to let people step on and off. A train moves _____, racing past fields, over bridges, and through deep, dark tunnels.

Passengers sit in _____ that are hooked together in a long line.

The engineer moves levers to make the train _____ or slow down.

Zooming through a _____ in a mountain is faster than trudging up and over a mountain.

A powerful locomotive pulls or pushes the train _____.

Bright _____ help the driver see ahead and let people know the train is coming.

_____ with special edges keep the train on the track.

A train rolls along two shiny trails called railroad _____.

